Artist Statement

In these works I've tried to express a feeling of transition, that uncertain state where one thing is leading into another and will soon become something else. For a time, nothing is very clear - only part of the picture is available, like scenery in the beam of a torch. Shapes are open to interpretation, and reflections can look surprisingly real.

Artist Statement

I get a strange feeling when I leave a place. I bid farewell to what is left behind because I know I will never be that way again. But I take the experience, the understanding with me. And as I sail toward unexplored shores, the lines of the new land might be blurred but I know, all that passed has prepared me to find my way on the other side. I always find a little more of myself on a new adventure.
