Natalie Holland & Inge Flinte

Stitched Realities brings together artists Natalie Holland and Inge Flinte in an exploration of identity, culture, and belonging. Both of us come from mixed backgrounds - Niuean and Japanese/German - and our work reflects the experience of living between worlds.

Through contemporary textile and mixed-media processes, including punch needle, tufting, stitching, painting, and photography - we reimagine traditional techniques and motifs from our heritages. The process becomes a way to reconnect with the stories and materials that have shaped us, while also creating space for new narratives to emerge.

For us, Stitched Realities is about connection; piecing together fragments of heritage, memory, and place. It's a deeply personal process, but one that we hope speaks to anyone who has ever felt in-between.
